KNOCKERS CANNOT NOW BE LOCATED

Some of Them Converted, and Rest Made Away With by Progressives.

FARMERS' MEETINGS HELD

More Persons Bitten by Mad Dog Come to City for Treatment.

What has become of the knockers on the question of progressive farming in Virginia? This question is aspiriting in J. J. Owen, director of farmers' institutes for the Department of Agriculture, because of the absence of this class of citizens from the meetings now being held in the western part of the State. Not only are they absent, but they cannot even be heard of.

Writing of his experiences during the present campaign of education, which is the most widespread and comprehensive yet attempted, Mr. Owen admits that he can account for some of the knockers of former years. They have been converted and are occupying the front seats at the lectures. The remainder, he concludes, have been "trampled under the feet of the progressives and either killed or so badly frightened they were unable to get out to the meetings."

Struck With County. Judging from the tone of his letter, it is presumed that nothing but the stern exactions of duty would ever compel Director Owen to tear himself away from his high bounty, where he wrote "The delights of the mountain county and its little capital, Monterey, moved him to wax poetical and to talk of the 'everlasting hills' and 'smiling valleys,' where the population lives the ideal life, and the town is a goodly city, and Mr. Owen says that its people are elevated. In fact, its charms seem almost to have raised him in the air."

Furthermore, the law-abiding quality of the population made his comment on the County Commonwealth's attorney tells him that he has been unable to make $20 on criminal prosecutions for the past year.

Large Crowd Attend. According to the letter, all the meetings have been well attended. This in spite of the fact that there were disturbing factors at some points. One of these was the Hagerston Fair, and the other the busy seeding season, when the drought was so bad that a delay in all cases the farmers were thoroughly responsive to the lectures and always betrayed the keenest interest. In most places the party was invited to return and was guaranteed a bigger crowd next time.

A near-by instance the local representatives in the Legislature attended the meeting, and gave it their encouragement. But the Monterey meeting "capped the climax," Mr. Owen says. "It was a situation of forty-six miles from Staunton, and to reach it one must cross four mountains. Promptly at the meeting hour the farmers from all over the county began to pour into the courthouse, some on horseback, some on foot, and some on mules. In fact, the speakers who had felt that because of the distance from the railroad the town was almost out of the world, the appearance of the citizens was a surprise. They were well dressed and not only intelligent, but looked it. They listened with marked attention to the lectures."

Cattle and Sheep. "This little town has electric lights and a fine water system, and many of the sidewalks are of concrete. This is one of the finest bluegrass sections of the State. Thousands of sheep go to the market each year from this county, and hundreds of cattle that have never been milked, are sent to the farmers' markets in the morning, that they had sold more than 100 years old, and better to-day than ever before."

"Formerly a tedious ride of ten hours was required to reach Monterey in a stage coach, by the way, the ride is now in less than three hours. Many prosperous farmers are buying machines. Land values are high, some farms selling at $100 per acre, and but few of them are for sale."

TAKING TREATMENT

Total of Fifteen Persons Bitten by Mad Dog in Dinwiddie.

Three additional persons who were bitten by the mad dog at the convict camp near Dinwiddie Courthouse came to Richmond yesterday and applied for treatment at the offices of the State Health Department. Their treatment with the Pasteur virus will be begun to-day. The three children of W. P. Tatem, who came to Richmond Thursday, began to take treatment yesterday.

The six convicts who were bitten by the same animal were brought to the city last evening and placed in jail. They will be treated there. The others are treated at the Nurses' Settlement.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST THREE

Man and Two Women Arrested for Alleged Killing of David H. Marshall.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Roanoke, Va., October 21.—J. H. Jesse, proprietor of the Tip-Top Hotel; Sarah Reynolds, colored, housekeeper, and Little Lucas, white, serving maid, were arrested here to-night, charged with the murder of David H. Marshall. The crime was committed October 11 at the Tip-Top Hotel, Marshall being attacked and beaten to death. His assailant pounded him in his face until he was unconscious, and then kicked him about the head and body, finally picking him from the floor and throwing him on a sofa.

The coroner's jury held several sessions, but was never able to agree on a verdict. Marshall, an aged farmer, of Franklin, who was in the room at the time when the murder was committed, turned State's evidence, declaring Jesse the guilty man, and asserting that the women looked on while Marshall was beat to death.

DESPONDENT GIRL TRIES TO END LIFE

Shoots Herself Through Head, and Hope of Recovery.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Norfolk, Va., October 21.—Broken down in general health and despondent because she believed she was gradually losing her health, Miss Annie Amelia Stallings, the eighteen-year-old daughter of A. C. Stallings, of Portsmouth, shot herself through the head this morning, and attending physicians hold out little hope of her final recovery. The young woman resides with her parents at Linden Avenue and Duke Street. Her father operates a successful grocery in that section. Miss Stallings went to her room shortly after breakfast this morning to dress and come to work. When she was alone in her room, she brought the pistol into play, sending a bullet crashing into her brain. The wound is fatal, and an operation will be necessary if she recovers from the shock.

THREE SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY

Verdict Against Carletons on Charge of Killing Arthur Howard.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Bristol, Va., October 21.—Finding John Carleton, his wife, Nellie Carleton, and their son, Rupert, guilty of murder in the second degree in the Circuit Court at Blountville to-day, the jury fixed their punishment at fifteen years each in the Tennessee penitentiary.

Corra Carleton, a nine-year-old daughter of John and Nellie Carleton, is left alone a subject of charity, and will probably have to find a home in an orphan asylum.

The Carletons were tried for the murder of Arthur Howard, a young business man of Bristol, and son-in-law of John and Nellie Carleton. Howard was shot down near the Carleton home December 29 last, the fatal shot having been fired from a shotgun by Rupert Carleton. It was established that John Carleton was aided and abetted in the killing by his parents. The Carletons charged and undertook to prove that Howard had threatened the family and had repeatedly abused and intimidated John Carleton, who is an aged man.

Not satisfied with the verdict, counsel for the defendants immediately made a motion to have the verdict set aside, and the motion will be argued to-morrow.

WILL REPORT NEXT WEEK.

Grand Jury Investigating Alleged Frauds Adjourns Until Wednesday.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Norfolk, Va., October 21.—The grand jury now investigating alleged frauds in the conduct of the Democratic congressional primary election of August 23 last, having adjourned until Wednesday of next week, on that day or the day following make a final report to the court if present program is carried out.

It has been decided to make inquiries into the conduct of the primary in the Third as well as the second Ward of Norfolk, and to this end Walter H. Taylor, of the law firm of Loyall, Taylor & White, and others of the Third Ward, have been summoned to appear Wednesday morning. Just what is wanted with Mr. Taylor is not explained, and probably will not be until next week.

The grand jury has as yet made no request of the Commonwealth's attorney for indictments in blank.

The idea of the jury seems to be to make a report to the court of such things as it has ascertained, and leave the drawing of indictments, if there are to be any, until after the report is made.

TO STAMP OUT GLANDERS.

Vigorous Efforts to Eradicate Disease Among Horses in Norfolk.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Norfolk, Va., October 21.—As a result of an address by Dr. George C. Faville, United States Inspector of Animal Industry, before the veterinarians and sanitary inspectors of Norfolk yesterday afternoon, a system for stamping out glanders among horses of this city was mapped out, and will be closely observed by the health department. In his address Dr. Faville emphasized the necessity of having the veterinarians report all cases to the health commissioner immediately upon discovery of a suspected animal, and it was agreed that this should be done.

The sanitary inspectors were also instructed to keep a close watch for horses with suspicious symptoms and to take the animals to the city slaughterhouse as quickly as possible, thereby ending the inspector's responsibility. Dr. Faville, representing the government, will receive of cost all applicants sufficient materials to conduct the necessary tests of the disease.

When an order closing the public drinking troughs, through which it is believed, the disease spreads, as well as through the feed boxes in public stables, an ordinance is being framed to be presented to the council, providing for a revision of the stable laws of Norfolk.
